Barnett Park Re-greening Project Report for November – Martin Ward

Agreement has been reached to extend the areas we are permitted to work in with the addition of a fourth 'safe' area closer to the main cave.

Boneseed weeding has been completed for the year with outstanding coverage of the valley within the full area designated as safe to access. Small pockets of larger bushes only remain. Regrowth will keep us entertained for years however. Elder in the lower valley has been targeted in two Wednesday afternoon outings and is to be targeted next month by a team from Jobs for Nature organised by the Council.

Sheep removal has been finally achieved by the CCC 'stock' Ranger after several attempts and hopefully secure fencing is now in place on the western boundary with Rutherford's land.

One of our volunteers has been 'approved' by Rangers to use chainsaws in the park. Investigations are being made into formal training in chainsaw use.

Inspection by our team's ecologist with the CCC's Ranger ecologist has confirmed the great potential of the valley for restoration with numerous species of importance some known at only a few other locations in this area. A number of possible locations for in-fill planting of native seedlings next spring have been identified.

An area of planting approximately 12/15 years old has been located on the eastern side towards the main cave overgrown with Muehlenbeckia and banana passionfruit. This is being cleared by our team on weekly visits

A group of Redcliffs School pupils with teacher and parent in tow have made a first visit to an area of younger planting with a view to 'adopting' it for ongoing weed control, planting and possibly predator control. This area which is towards the main cave on the eastern side of the valley was outside our 'approved' work area but was included at our request after discussion with the Chief Ranger as noted above.

Ashley Rule has information on possum trapping
